According to Shaffer, the proposed agreement would put in place a 100-year commitment for the district to supply water. The accounting and usage tracking would be difficult, Shaffer said, adding that he saw little benefit for the district in the proposal beyond the payments it would generate. Shaffer mentioned that WWSD already has one augmentation agreement with King's Deer.

The district currently has two such agreements, Shaffer said, one with Prairie Winds Elementary School and the other with a customer he did not name. Shaffer added that, in his opinion, some customers in the district would object to the agreement.

In response to a question from Director at Large Brian Bush, Shaffer explained that the agreement would commit the district to discharge water into streams to replace water that is currently discharged by King's Deer. This would allow King's Deer to retain more of the water from their wells, and use it for landscaping and other outdoors uses. Other water that Potter already owns is in the wrong watershed to be delivered to King's Deer, according to Shaffer.

Bush questioned whether the district should facilitate pumping more water from the aquifers that the wider community relies on, especially for uses such as landscaping. He
