

Another aspect addressed in the graduation requirements is credit for correspondence distant learning. These are college-level classes taken through accredited schools and pre-approved by counselors or principals.

Students must also demonstrate proficiency in English and math, according to Colorado Department of Education requirements.

This was the first reading of the policy.

Changes to policies JFBA and JFBB regarding open enrollment were approved by the board. These changes were a matter of clarification with no significant differences from previous wording. Issues addressed include who is eligible to enroll in a school other than their neighborhood school, and whether transportation is provided.

Public comments

Controversy continues regarding the use of the No Place for Hate program at Lewis-Palmer Middle School. Two individuals spoke in favor of the program, stating that it is student-centered and can be customizable to the individual school.

Two others objected to the display of rainbow posters and banners at the school, stat-
