

2012 Chautauqua held at TLCA, Aug. 3

Above: The “Legendary Ladies,” founded in 1992 by Joan Hemm, provided the historical anthology of famous ladies with historical significance. From left are Judie Hinton portraying May Elitch Long, Jean Rosecrans as Calamity Jane, Kathy Swofford as suffragist Ellis Meredith, Gisele Denton as Molly Brown, and Susan Atwood playing Harvey girl Bertha Spears. The legendary Ladies group is celebrating 20 years and is always looking for new talent. Apply at info@legendaryladies.org. Photo by Bernard Minetti.
