She expressed concern that the district has no security director.

Brofft said that many people working together have come up with a good system, but a single director would be more focused on the subject. The district needs focus and expertise in one person. As a result of the Claire Davis Act, there will likely be a checklist of requirements to ensure that the district can maintain legal immunity in the event of a violent incident and prove a high standard of care on its part.

Sampayo said that she spoke with a member of the security committee and was impressed with the credentials of the committee regarding their outside experience and credentials.

Brofft reiterated that the district needs an individual in charge, reminding the board that the School Resource Officer is an employee of the Sheriff's Office and can be called away at any time. When asked whether creation of the position is doable, Brofft said that half a full-time employee is now being used.

Policy discussion

Foster led discussion of policy BAAR, involving consequences if a board member acts counter to policy. Also discussed was policy BE, in which it is stated that official communication should be hand delivered. Brofft suggested that it should be hand delivered or delivered electronically during a specific time frame.

Citizen comments

A number of citizens took the opportunity to address the board. Among them:

- Former Principal Caryn Collette commended the district for its preparation of students for college and the workforce and listed honors received by the district and its teachers.
- Former Superintendent Ted Bauman spoke of the Lewis-Palmer Hall of Fame and its upcoming nomination process.
- Denise Wilson of the Lewis-Palmer Education Association spoke of a recent fundraiser to help individuals pay utility bills in the area.
- James Howald commented that, despite recent comments suggesting a lack of trust of the board, all incumbent board members were re-elected last November. He wished to tell the board that those who make comments in meetings speak only for themselves and not for the community. He also applauded the three-year contract for Brofft.
- Jennica Mabe, Carry Block, and Amy Senkowski spoke about the goals of the middle school and praised the Path2Empathy program.
- One individual spoke of the search for a new principal at Kilmer and expressed disappointment that it
